the contest versus Northeastern Oklahoma, McMurry added 32 points. He still ranks ninth on the single-season scoring list and 14th on the all-time scoring list at Cowley College. After his time in Arkansas City, McMurry accepted an athletic scholarship to play basketball at the University of Colorado, where he was named an All-Big Eight selection. McMurry was offered a graduate assistant scholarship to work on his master's degree in education while serving as an assistant basketball coach.

He left Boulder in 1970 for the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, where he worked in the division of student affairs and helped the late Joe Cipriano recruit for his men's basketball team.

After earning his doctorate in higher education administration from UNL in 1975, McMurry embarked on careers with two Nebraska governors and Grambling State University in Louisiana.

She went on to play volleyball and study exercise science at the University of Illinois Springfield, graduating in 2022. Following graduation, she moved to Montgomery, AL, where she initially auditioned for American Idol and was honored to make it to the Top 20 finalists in Season 21. Since appearing on the show, she has moved to Nashville with her now fiancée and continues to pursue music as a career.

The Commencement Program is a roster of candidates, not an official list of graduates. The appropriate degrees and honors will be awarded to the candidates who successfully have completed all requirements by the date of conferral.

A NOTE ON AMERICAN ACADEMIC COSTUME

The academic costume worn at American college exercises today goes back in its essential features to the Middle Ages. The oldest universities of northern Europe, such as Cambridge and Oxford in England, grew out of church schools, and both faculty and students were regarded in the Middle Ages as a part of the clergy. Hence, they wore clerical garb, largely borrowed from the monastic dress of their day, not merely on special occasions, but as their regular costume. It has been used in the United States since colonial times and was standardized by an intercollegiate code in 1895.

The head-covering of the academic costume developed out of the skullcap worn by the clergy in cold weather to protect their tonsured heads. In the universities, this skullcap acquired a point on top, which gradually evolved into a tassel. The bonnet with tassel is still worn by degree-holders of the European universities. But in this country it has been replaced by the familiar mortar-board, which still however, retains the medieval tassel.

The hood (the medieval caputium) was originally a head-covering worn over the head in bad weather, and otherwise dropped onto the shoulders, like the monk’s cowl. At first it was worn by faculty and students alike, but in the early 16th century, it was restricted to graduates, and thus came to be the mark of a degree-holder. Today, each college has its distinctively colored hood-lining, by which its graduates may be recognized in academic processions.

The gown worn today is the medieval roba, and seems to have been borrowed from the habit of the Benedictine monks. In the Middle Ages, undergraduates, bachelors, and masters’ gowns often were furred—and this survives today in the ornamentation found on the doctoral gowns. The major distinguishing characteristics of the gown are the sleeves, styled in the following fashions: bachelor, long-pointed; master, oblong; doctor, bell-shaped.

Holders of master and doctoral degrees wear hoods lined with the official colors of the college or university from which the degree was granted. They vary in size and shape to indicate the numerous degrees.

The wide velvet borders extending down the front of the doctoral gown, the three velvet bars on the sleeves, and the borders of most hoods, are colored according to the scholarly field of the wearer.
